SWANSON AGAIN CANDIDATE FOR U. S. SENATE

Senior Senator Denounces As False Rumors that He Would Not Run

CAMPAIGN NOW ON

States Report That He Is In Poor Health Is Untrue, And That He Is Now Actively Campaigning

Mr. Thomas E. Frank,
Editor Fauquier Democrat,
Warrenton, Virginia,
My dear Mr. Frank::

Upon my return to Washington after an absence of several days visiting Tidewater Virginia, I found your kind letter of the 7th instant awaiting me.

I have carefully noted your letter regarding the report being circulated and published that owing to the condition of my health I would not be a candidate in the Democratic Primary next year for re-election to the United States Senate.

The report that I am in bad health and will not be a candidate is absolutely without foundation and is being circulated for malicious political purposes. This report has been denied repeatedly by me and by those acquainted with my good physical condition and purpose to be a candidate. Despite repeated denials those unfriendly to me persist in circulating the report, which as above stated, is absolutely without foundation and is false in every way.

This report emanates from and is engendered by those unfriendly to me for the purpose of injuring me politically. Neither friends nor members of my family have ever advised me not to be a candidate on account of my health or any other reason whatsoever. This rumor is so malicious and false that I would be very glad to locate those responsible for its creation and circulation. This falsehood is always being published and circulated as a "rumor;" its propagators avoiding responsibility. I AM SURPRISED AND REGRET THAT ANY REPUTABLE PAPER SHOULD PUBLISH SUCH A RUMOR WITHOUT MAKING EFFORT TO ASCERTAIN ITS TRUTH OR FALSITY, PARTICULALY SINCE ITS REPEATED DENIALS

My health is better now than for many years, I have been daily attending the sessions of the Senate and discharging fully my official duties. Since the recess of Congress I have been visiting various parts of Virginia and many people, having heard this false nad malicious report, have expressed surprise on account of may excellent physical condition.

During the late war I was very heavily taxed by official duties, being chairman of one of the most important committees of the Senate during that period. In addition, the illness of Senator Martin gave me the work practically of two senators, which with illness in my own family caused me to over tax myself. I only needed rest to overcome the effects of this severe strain, which rest I have had and am now in excellent physical condition.

I AM A CANDIDATE IN THE DEMOCATIC PRIMARY FOR RE-ELECTION TO THE UNITED STATES SENATE AND AM CONDUCTING A MOST VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN. I have been actively engaged in organizing the State and find conditions most favorable and encouraging. I shall, as the campaign progresses, as far as my official duties in Washington will permit, present fully and vigorously to the electorate of Virginia an account of my stewardship and claims for re election. I shall not neglect my official duties here to advance my own personal political interests, I think the best proof of fitness to continue in office or to be promoted is to remain at your post, discharging the duties for which the people compensate you, and not neglect them in seeking to obtain continuance in office or advancement. I feel sure the people of Virginia will return me to the Senate by a very decisive majority.

Thanking you for calling my attention to this unjust and unwarranted report, I am, with kind regards and best wishes.

Your friend.
(Signed) CLAUDE A. SWANSON.

FORMER PRESIDENT HERE

Woodrow Wilson Motors Through City Yesterday

A large number of Alexandrians had occasion yesterday afternoon to get a glimpse of former President Woodrow Wilson. The former Chief Executive motored through the streets of the city on his way out the Camp Humphreys road. It was noticed that Mr. Wilson has greatly improved in health. He took an interest in everything he saw and appeared to be in good spirits. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and by Mrs. Wilson's brother, Mr. Bolling. The former President always enjoys his motor trips through the suburbs of Alexandria and nearly every Sunday while he occupied the White House he could be seen motoring to Pohick

STATE NEWS

Richmond—Sharp criticism of statements made by Henry W. Anderson, republican candidate for governor of Virginia, are expected to be made by Representative Hal D. Flood, chairman of the state democratic excutive committee, when he opens the democratic campaign at Halifax Monday.

Chairman Flood, it is understood, will read a document emanating from a distinguished citizen of Virginia in which exception is taken in no uncertain language to remarks made by the republican candidate, but the nature of the document is being carefully guarded.

Trinkle at Clintwood

E. Lee Trinkle, democratic candidate for governor, spoke Thursday at Galax but the formal opening of his campaign for governor will take place at Clintwood, Dickenson county, Tuesday. The southwest, though the home of the democratic nominee, has always been a republican stronghold and it is, therefore, in the enemy's country that the first blast of the candidate's bugle will be blown.

Danville—Capt. R. L. Purdon, U. S. A., who has been here for three days recruiting men for the National Guard Tank corps, announced this afternoon that Adjutant Geenral Jo Lane Stern had made the award of the company to Danville. A 3 cornerd race developed for securing this outfit, Danville defeating Richmond and Portsmouth. Fifty six men have been enlisted here this being more than the minimum quota. Three tanks will be kept here permanently after the mustering in and first official inspection.

Newport News—Mistaken for a highwayman. Fred I. Livesay, one of the hundreds of citizens forming the poose in search of the negro slayer of Policeman de Korte, was shot and almost instantly killed last night by Milton Morgan, a youth, who was returning from a visit at his sweetheart's home

Young Morgan stated that Livesay flashed the light in his face just as he passed a point where he had been held up previously and that he fired, thinking it was another hold-up. He was arrested as a matter of formality, but county authorities on the scene at the time personally held the young man blameless.

Lynchburg—When Daniel Fitzgerald, a resident of Amherst County, decided that he would take a mule ride to Halifax County for a visit with friends, he did not know he was sick, but it did not not take much time for Traffic Officer Young, when the man passed him at Ninth and Main Streets to see that he was a case of smallpox loose in the city.

Fitzgerald was hurried to the health

DREADNAUGHTS VICTORS

Defeat Church Hill For Championship of State by Score of 4 to 3

The Dreadnaught base ball team, yesterday added another to their long list of victories when they "took the scalp" of the Church Hill team of Richmond, defeating them by the score of 4 to 3. The verdict of the fans is that this was the most interesting game that has been staged in this city the entire season.

Every thing went along smoothly, no one scoring until the beginning of the fourth when, following a two base hit, a bunt and two singles scored a Church Hill runner. In the Dreadnaught's section of the same inning Ludlow came to bat and pounded the "old apple" out of the lot for a home run. Devers was then easily thrown out at first. Tolson, a big "Tar Heel" first base recruit, came to bat next lined out a three bagger Stephens and Alexander were both caught before thy reached first. Fifth inning, three up, three down, both teams. In the sixth, Frye and Tolson, engineered a double play, which, assisted by an easy throw out at first, retired Church Hill scoreless. No better luck for the D's. In the seventh Frye had three strike outs credited to him. Alexander was out at first, Stephens rapped a single, Giles rolled out a double, and Frye singled, then Berle and Williams came and went, retiring the side with bases loaded. In the eighth the Richmonders rapped out some singles and doubles and managed to put the D's in what looked very much like a hole by scoring two of their runners. Ludlow, Devers and Tolson, the D's big three, did little toward relieving the minds of the fans when they popped two flies into the hands of the fielders and struck out respectively. The Richmond champions also popped three puny flies out in their section of the ninth. With the score 3 to 1 against th D's many of the fans had already given up hope, Jimmy Alexander went to bat and did nothing but knock a three bagger. Stephens then singled and Alexander scored, the fans went wild, Thomas was put on the mound for Church Hill in place of Chewing. Giles walked, forcing Stephens to second. Frye then bunted safe and loaded the bases. Berle struck out. Williams then came to bat and won a place in the heart of every fan by singling and scoring Stephens and Giles. Williams was carried from the field on the shoulders of a group of excited fans. The game was over and the team that has won the championship of Richmond and vicinity, had been defeated. Each team has to its credit 11 hits. Batteries: Stephens and Frye, Tignor and Chewing.

TWO ARE DEAD 36 WOUNDED IN BELFAST CLASH

Troops and Police Fire Into Crowds After Bombs Are Thrown

ONE GIRL WOUNDED

Both Unionists And Republicans Throw Bombs—Reinforcements Arrive

Belfast, Sept. 26.—Two persons were killed and 36 wounded in rioting here last night during which bombs were thrown. Two children playing in the streets and a girl were wounded by stray bullets during the affray.

The girl was wounded when the police and military fired on crowds of people in Seaford street.

Eigteen of the wounded were taken to the Victoria Hospital and the other 18 to the Women's Hospital. During the fighting a saloon was burned.

One bomb was thrown in the Milewater road, which is outside the area that has been concerned in the rioting. Six persons were wounded here, two of them seriously.

One version of the earlier bombing in East Belfast is that a Unionist crowd threw a bomb into a combination liquor and grocery store in order to set it on fire, and that while they were carrying out the operation they were made the targets for a Republican bomb.

Military reinforcements arrived in Belfast this afternoon, and vigorous measures to quell the disturbances are expected.

WOMAN'S PARTY PREPARED FOR EQUALITY ISSUE

To End All National And State Discrimination Against Sex Is Aim

AMENDMENT DRAFTED

Proposed Constitutional Change To Be Presented to House And Senate On October 1

Washington, Sept. 26.—The National Woman's Party announced yesterday the completion of preparations for a campaign to obtain national and state legislation removing political, civil and legal "discriminations" against women.

A proposed "equal rights" amendment to the Federal Constitution has been drafted by counsel for the Women's party and will be introduced in the Senate by Senator Curtis, of Kansas, and in the House by Representative Fess of Ohio, on October 1. The text of the proposed amendment follows:

Section 1. No political, civil or legal disabilities or inequalities on account of sex or on account of marriage, unless applying equally to both sexes, shall exist within the United States or any territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof.

Section 2.—Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

The need of such amendment to guarantee women equal rights with men in all the states will be presented exhaustively by distinguished women at hearings to be held at an early date by the Judiciary Committees of the two houses, to which the proposed amendment will be referred. An effort will be made to obtain action on the amendment at the next session of Congress. A two-thirds vote of each house is necessary for the submission of an amendment to the states approval by three-fourths of which is necessary for adoption.

Incorporation of the proposed amendment in the Constitution would operate to invalidate innumerable provisions of state laws which withhold from women the same rights as men in the possession and disposition of property, control of minor children freedom of contract choice, of domicile, holding of public office, jury service and other functions.

The question has been raised whether removal of "inequalities on account of sex" would not operate to invalidate many laws discriminating in favor of women, such as laws limiting the hours of work for women and prohibiting the employment of women at night. On this point Miss Maud Younger, national legislative chairman of the Woman's party, said last night:

"There are two phases of the question which we have had to consider in drawing up this amendment and bill.

"First, that all the discriminations against women should be included, and

"Second, that industrial legislation, such as the Eight-hour law, minimum wages, etc., should not in any way be touched.

"At first it was thought that perhaps a clause specifically exempting industrial legislation would be necessary, but we are informed by our legal advisers that this is unnecessary. As our measures now stand it seems that they neither approve nor disapprove such legislation—they do not touch it. The consensus of opinion among the lawyers whom we have consulted is that the Supreme Court could, at present if it wished throw out the industrial legislation for women as unconstitutional under the Fifth and Fourteenth amendments to the Constitution, and that it can, also do so if our proposed amendment is passed, but that our amendment and bill will not make it any more likely that this legislation will be thrown out."

The Woman's party has also drafted a blanket bill removing the disabilities of women for passage by State Legislatures. The Wisconsin Legislature has already passed the bill.

Bible Thought for Today

GUARD THE TONGUE—Keep thy tongue from evil and thy lips from speaking guile. Depart from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it.—Psalm 34: 13, 14.

GIRL SCOUTS DOINGS

The Girl Scouts and the Big Pioneers spent a delightful evening on their camp fire trip.

25 Scouts and 32 Pioneers presented a striking picture lined up with one girl between two boys.

Everyone enjoyed the hike out to the "sand flats" and back also.

As soon as they arrived out there everyone hunted up firewood.

Then, teh eats! and they were eats! Oh, boy!

One of the speial treats of the program were teh stunts with which we were favored by Gladys Hohenstein A very interesting poem was recited to the honor of Captain Jones

"Ass pole' was played in which the Pioneers came out victorious. Farmer in the Dell," Tisket a Tasket and Three Deep," were some of the exciting games played by the boys and girls.

The Pioneers sang quite a few of their songs which were the good old camp day songs.

When they arrived in town the yells brought out a policeman to see if there was a riot or some such thing. But to his surprise he found a bunch of happy boys and girls.

The girls and boys were accompanied by Mrs. Whittle, who once had a troop of girls, Capt. Jones, Mr. Wallace, Mrs. Allen, Miss Allen, Mrs Bayliss and little Miss Marjorie Ann Garvey 3 years old, the youngest scout.

Scouts don't forget the "Mothers Club" Friday at 3:30, and the Scout meting at 7:00 p. m.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

Washington, Sept. 26.—It is quite apparent now that the treaty of peace between the United States, Germany, Austria and Hungary is not going to have such smooth sailing through the Senate as President Harding and the other administration leaders had expected. While there seems to be very little doubt but that the Senate will eventually ratify the pact, such action will not be taken, however, until after a number of Senators, Republicans as well as Democrats, have pointed out their objections to the treaty and have placed themselves on record against its ratification. The Republican fight against ratification of the treaty has already started, Senator Borah, of Idaho, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, leading the opposition to the treaty. Senator La Follette, Republican, of Wisconsin, also, will have something to say against ratification of the pact and there may be other Republican converts to the opposition side before the Senate votes on ratification. A good number of Democratic Senators are likewise opposed to the treaty and it is expected that they will cast their votes against it.

"Bob" Zachary Fortunate.

The friends of Robert A. Zachary in Alexandria will be glad to learn that "Bob" has landed a responsible position with Senator Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey. Zachary, who is past master of the Alexandria Lodge of Masons, for the last seventeen years has been attached to the Washington Bureau of the Brooklyn Eagle. He is regarded as one of the best known and most capable of the Washington correspondents and has a very wide acquaintance with public men, not only in Congress, but throughout official life at the National Capital. In about two weeks time, Zachary will sever his connection with the newspaper he has served so faithfully and well and will become private secretary to Senator Edge. His friends in the newspaper world will be glad of his promotion but they will be sorry to lose him from their profession. "Bob" is living with his wife and two children at Braddock.

"Moonshiner's" Anthem.

During the debate on the anti-beer bill in the Senate last week, Senator Augustus Owsley Stanley, of Kentucky, who opposes the measure in its present form, took occasion to insert in the Congressional Record what he characterized as the "Moonshiner's National Anthem." The first stanza of this anthem runs as follows:

"My country 'tis of thee,
Land of grape juice and tea,
Of thee I sing.
Land where we all have tried
to break the law and lied;
From every mountain side,
The bootleg spring.
My native country, thee,
Land of home brewerie,
Thy brew I love.
I love they booze and thrills,
And thy illicit stills;
The moonshine runs in rills,

Unemployment Conference

The conference on unemployment began its sessions today and from present prospects it will not complete its duties for at least three weeks. There are a number of knotty problems affecting the industrial situation in the the United States which the delegates will be called upon to solve. There is no doubt, and statistics will demonstrate that there are thousands upon thousands out of work in the country at the present time and it will be the aim of the members of the conference to devise ways and means for providing employment for the army of unemployed .How the matter is to be adjusted and the situation remedied are questions yet to be answered. The delegates invited to take part in the conference have a very difficult task to perform but everybody will wish them well in their undertaking.

Harding to Stay on Job

President Harding says he is not going to accept any more invitations to leave Washington at the present time. He finds that the jam of legislation on Capitol Hill demands his presence at the White House as he is responsible to the country more than any other man for the promise relief to the general public. The tax measure which will be placed before the Senate just as soon as the treaty of peace with Germany is out of the way, is in very bad shape and is sure to encounter much opposition before it becomes a law. The Chief Executive, therefore, must be on guard to steer the ship of state out of its hazardous position if he can possibly do so.

3 POWERS WILL DEFINE MAXIMUM CONCESSIONS

United States, Britain and Japan Will Enter Conference With Fixed Policy

COMPROMISE LIKELY

Three Issues Before Washington, London And Tokio Governments For Consideration

Washington, Sept. 26.—Each of the principal powers will enter the Conference on Limitation of Armaments and Far Eastern Questions with a clearly defined line of maximum concessions, according to best diplomatic information in Washington. Each will have a fixed policy to support, more emphasized perhaps in the cases of Great Britain, Japan and the United States, respecting national defense and economic security.

As viewed officially, Great Britain will seek to maintain her naval supremacy; Japan will insist upon a guaranteed egress for her overflowing population in contiguous regions, a free flow from Asia of raw materials for her industries and freedom from military menace, while the United States will insist upon the abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance and equality of opportunity for American trade and investments in China.

It is generally assumed that political considerations will dominate the conference, and that such agreements as may be reached will be effected through compromise, whereby in a fundamental sense every country represented would yield its ultimate right to resort to force to obtain special or exclusive advantage in such countries as China and Siberia, in order to secure the benefit of an international guaranty of economic and political security.

The several governments are thinking in terms of peace, realizing that any fresh war between two of the great powers, with the possibility of a general war, would throw back the nations even farther than did the war with the Central Empires in addtion to exposing to the danger of dissolution or to partition the very territories the preservation of whose integrity is the prime object of the Washington conference.

It is also accepted that, before an agreement can be reached on the question of limiting armaments, determination must be reached on those subjects held to be vital by each power cohcerned and involving interests the protection of which has resulted in the maintenance of large military and naval establishments.

It is generally agreed that the British Government must make substantial concessions to the United States if the British hope to secure America's assent to the maintenance of the relative standing of the British and American navies. Two considerations are being discussed in that connection. The first is a formal pledge that the British will not fortify any of her possessions in the Caribbean Sea. This includes the Island of Jamaica, the fortification of which the United States would view with genuine concern.

A second consideration is the proposed abandonment by Great Britain and Japan of the Anglo-Japanese alliance and the substitution therefor of a tripartite agreement defining the situation in the Pacific and the regions of Eastern Asia, respecting the interests of each and guaranteeing the integrity of these respective interests, without, however, pledging either to go to war in support of the threatened rights of another.

A third issue which might be expected to come up in some definite form is a possible revision of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty allowing the United States undisputed disposal of the Panama Canal, including tolls regulation.

It is the conviction of many well-informed authorities here that Japan desires an understanding with the United States more than she does the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

In this connection, it is believed that a proposal will be made that if the United States pledge itself not to fortify Guam or the Philippines, Japan will meet the wishes of America regarding both China and Siberia.

The fortification of Hawaii would not be involved, it is assumed, any more than the fortification of the Japanese islands themselves. Hawaii is indispensable to the defense of both the Panama Canal and the Pacific Coast of the United States, but Guam and the Philippines, it is said, would offer bases for aggressive military operations if they should be fortified Guam being regarded as the key to the Pacific.

SENATOR SWANSON'S LETTER

We publish in another column today a letter from Senator Claude A. Swanson, to Editor Frank, of the Fauquier Democrat, that should lay at rest the rumors that have been so industriously circulated by his enemies, as to his candidacy to succeed himself. The reports that have been given currency, and even published in certain unscrupulous newspapers, were that Senator Swanson would not make the race for re-election on account of ill-health. The Senator's letter puts an effective quietus on these malicious announcements. He will not only be in the race, but if the Gazette knows the situation, he will be easily first under the wire at the polls.

The thirty years of service which he has dedicated to the people of Virginia will be not only be eloquent in his behalf, but an unanswerable argument for his continuance in the office he has filled with such distinguished ability. For fourteen years he represented the fifth district in Congress, and his record was without a stain. As governor of Virginia he performed his duties with scrupulous fidelity to the traditions of that high station. As United States Senator he has stood out conspicuously among his colleagues from other states, and no man today merits or possesses their confidence and esteem to a greater degree. During the long years of the world war Senator Swanson stood at his post night and day, working indefatigably for his country, and as chairman of one of the most important committees in that trying period, performing his duties with a zeal and efficiency that won the admiration of all.

Virginia is to be congratulated that this old and faithful servant is still responsive to her call. Tried as by fire in the crucible of many years' eperience, it would indeed be folly now to experiment with strange metal. Especially as in the next decade this country will need the best statesmanship it can command.

It is not certain that Senator Swanson will have any opponents in the Democratic primaries of next year. The Gazette sincerely believes that the little boomlets now effervescing on the political horizon will die of their own vacuity. The Senator is too firmly entrenched in the affections and regard of the people of the Old Dominion to admit of any serious opposition for the office he has so long filled, with eminent satisfaction to his constituency and the Democracy at large.

The Post Office team defeated the fast Alexandria Rex in a very exciting game on Baggetts field Tuesday afternoon by the score of 10 to 5. Junk Trigger "the slow ball king" on the mound for the Rex had the "mail carriers" guessing for the first two innings, but the "goats got to him in the third inning with a score of seven runs. Manager Coleman derricked him in favor of "Speed ball" Peverill who held the "Goats down fairly well through the rest of the game. Wakefield on the mound for the "Mail carriers" had very smooth sailing. The stick work of Alexander ,Fones, and "Babe" Barnett were features. Tullock rode a merry go round in the first inning by knocking the apple out of the orchid over left field. Batteries: Rex, Trigger, Peverill, Tullock, and Lash; Post Office Goats Wakefield, Martin.

After their regular practice Thursday night, a meeting was called and it was decided to give the members under the auspics coaching of "Coodles" Owens, a name, in which Crystal Athletics Club was unanimously selected. Some of the players were with the Destroyer A. C., for the past 33 years and are giving a good exhibition of themselves in this new club, while under the training of Coodles, the new boys are trimming up in fine style. INTENSE WORK STRONG FACTOR IN ACCOUNTANCY

General Fitness Aside From Hard Study, First Essential, Says E. C. Bosworth.

Much has been written in the past concerning accountancy and its opportunities. Little it seems has been said outside of journals of the profession concerning adequate preparation. In some manner men and women have come to believe that here at last in this rather new profession was the opportunity to become wealthy and famous, with very little effort. That accountancy, like any field worth while, demands much in the way of natural ability and of educational training seems never to have entered the minds of many who seek success in the different schools which offer accountancy education.

The better type of professional school of accountancy recognizes that there are several salient points which should have the attention of the public, especially of that portion of the public which is earnestly and honestly considering the rich opportunities which accountancy offers. First, it has been clearly seen by many schools of high standards that an adequate general educational background for professional training should be an academic course equivalent to the four-year course required by the standard high school. No less than this can be satisfactory and while prophecy is often futile, many believe that the requirements of the future will be even higher. That this requirement of the professional school is reasonable seems to be demonstrated by the parallel requirement of the several State boards and of the American institute of Accountants. Perhaps it is more clearly demonstrated by the almost unbelievable percentage of failures in those schools where there is only a nominal entrance requirement.

In the second place the selection of students qualified for success in accountancy cannot rest entirely upon academic requirements. Nobody should be admitted to a course of professional grade except by virtue of a conference with a person qualified to judge of his natural abilities and temperamental fitness. Once admitted on such a basis, frequent and fair examinations combined with the careful personal supervision of trained instructors should mark out the man who seems destined to make good from the individual whose qualities give evidence of almost certain failure. In this way the school which honestly and conscientiously and in the spirit of service seeks to train accountants rather than to "hold students" will gain the type of success which every professional school would desire. This plan can be carried out—is carried out—by the better type of professional school.

Next, the instruction should be broad and should be practical. The accountant of tomorrow must be a thinker. The student therefore needs as a basis text that represents varied viewpoints of many leaders who are known for the soundness of their thinking. The instructors also should combine breath of practical experience with real teaching ability.

That the work should be practical means first of all that secondary subjects important as they are should be in a distinctly secondary position in the curriculum. That important as are law and economics, the major study should be accounting and that approximately two-thirds of the class and study time should be given to this major subject and to such closely related subjects as auditing and cost accounting. Problems should have the first place in all accounting courses problems truly practical and in every way reflecting conditions as they exist in modern business.

Last of all, it is the duty of the school to help the student to appreciate the limitations of professional education. The graduate of the medical school is not a physician, the graduate of the law school is not a lawyer, neither is the graduate of the school of accountancy a real accountant.

Very wisely, it seems to me, requirements for the degree of certified public accountant have generally included experience. If a man is to represent himself as a skilled accountant the public for its protection should know that he has had actual practical experience. Many State boards have demanded this. The American Institute of Accountants has gone farther than many of the State boards. The school should then say frankly, "We can and will give you instruction that will develop your reasoning powers in accountancy. we can and will train you to solve practical probelms, but with all that we can do there is much that cannot be gained outside the office of the professional accountant."

Many other things might be said concerning accountancy education—these are a few of the important points worthy of careful consideration by the man or woman seeking increased opportunity and the consequent increased income that comes from proper preparation.

Study In Spare Time Urged As Dividend Payer

By Arthur L. Ward Director of Washinggton Y. M. C. A. Schools

With 99 out of 100 persons, spare time represents the largest share of their capital, and their future success depends to a large degree on how they invest it. The average young man will say he works hard during the day and is entitled to a good time during the evening, and his evenings produce debts and perhaps other liabilities from a moral and physical standpoint.

The exceptional man or woman spends a portion of his time outside of employment, probably three evenings a week, in well directed study which yields far greater dividends than the best stocks ever placed on the market—and he still has enough spare time for exercise, recreation, religious activities, etc., which are essential to the largest life.

Advantage in Night Schools

Too many young people despair of getting an educaiton, because they cannot g othrough high and college before taking up regular day employment In some respects spare time education, in a school which maintains high standards, is equal to or superior to regular college training first, because evening studies can be made more practical than day studies if related to one's employment—the places where students work become the laboratories of the school; second, the evening student may modify his course at any time to meet the new demands made upon him by promotion; at the same time he continues to make use of his previous training and experience; third, instructors in evening schools, and particularly those teaching vocational subjects, not only have ability to impart their knowledge, but they are more practical men than the majority of professional teachers because they are engaged daily in the line of work which they handle in the class room

There are 4,695 week days between th age of 15 and 30. There are 18,780 spare hours during these 15 years, between 6 and 10 p. m. The use of a fair part of these spare hours for even a few years can be made to mean success, not only financially, but success in personal development, in preparing for larger opportunity, for leadership, for congenial work, for a place at the head of a family, for real happiness.

Understand! No wise counselor holds that a young man should spend al his leisure hours in study. Every one needs a certain amount of recreation and relaxation. The old proverb, "All work and no play," if treu for the boy is true for the man.

But everyone admits when he is honest with himself—that the human tendency is toward play rather than study. He knows that if he spends his evenings in the easy way, the chances are very few of them will count for very much in the years to come.

Just look around you and size up things for yourself in a cold commercial way. How many men at 24 or 30 are thoroughly prepared for some definite occupation? The percentage is pitifully small.

The useful knowledge that one can pick up during spare hours is alone worth all it costs. But that isn't all. There is something even bigger. When a man makes up his mind that certain hours of the week are to be devoted to putting something into his head and sticks to his decision, he at once begins to grow in character. He discipline himself. He learns regularity. He begins to concentrate. As he proceeds he gains self confidence and the power to achieve He is a different man when he comes to the end of his self appointed task.

"The hour of fate," writes Victor Murdock, "is 7 p. m." (If he were speaking of young people in Washington, he would probably say 6 p. m.) "That hour," he continues is the springboard from which most men leap to success or fall off to failure. I am convinced that this hour is the fork in the road, one of which leads to character and the other to the lack of it. After a man reaches forty perhaps he may take liberties with the right of decision at 7 p. m., but if he is uncertan over it at fifteen or twenty-five, he is dawdling and he will pay the dawdler's debt in life—the humiliation that comes to age in the self-confession of failure."(Washington Times.)

FILING SCHOOL INVITES PUBLIC TO ITS OPENING

Miss Luella Sweeney, director of the Standard School of Filing and Indexing with offices at 1218 F street northwest, announces that the public is cordially invited to visit the class rooms at its convenience.

This is one of the ten schools located in large cities of the United States under the jurisdiction of Miss Irene Warren with offices in Chicago. Miss Warren was in the library of the University of Chicago, and has taught filing at Chicago, University and other universities during summer sessions.

Miss Luella Sweeney, who is in charge of Washington school, a graduate of Leland Stanford University, and has done advance work at the University of California and was for several years in university library work, and later taught in the schools at Gary, Ind. Miss Sweeney has at her command the knowledge and information secured through her travels, studies and experience which especially qualifies her as the head of this new educational institution.

C. H. Woodward, manager of the Globe-Wernicke Company on F street, has given Miss Sweeny unlimited command and the use of the most modern equipment and the facilities of the entire Globe Wernicke organization for the successful promotion of her classes.

The major object of this school is to meet the growing demand of business and government offices for trained and qualified indexing and filing clerks, and to afford business men with a better understanding of the importance of the proper filing and indexing of their daily transactions. This school will be open to business men and women, office managers and others wishing a thorough knowledge of this science.

Y. M. C. A. SCHOOLS HAVE WIDE RANGE

Teach 80 Resident Courses And 120 Others by Correspondence

The City of Washington is rapidly becoming one of the greatest educational centers in America, because of the many thousands of government employes who come here from the smaller cities and rural communities where they have had only limited educational advantages, and are therefore eager to continue their education. Yet there are thousands of young men and women in the city who are not availing themselves of the splendid opportunity for spare time improvement.

The Washington Y. M. C. A. schools alone offer more than eighty resident courses, ranging from the most elementary subjects to those of college grade. Practically all of these courses are also offered by correspondence for those in smaller towns and rural districts and others who are unable to enroll for regular class work. Correspondence courses are also offered in more than 120 other subjects which are not taught in the local Y. M. C. A. Schools.

The remarkable growth of the local Y. M. C. A. schools is shown in the increase in enrollment from 851 students in 1916-17 to 3,532 students in the year which has just closed. Last year the enrollment was distributed among eight different schools, including the Washington School of Accountancy, the Washington Law School, the Washington Preparatory School, the Washington Commercial School, the Washington School of Drafting, the Automotive School, the Washington Day School for Boys, the School for Employed Boys.

A number of special courses have been added to this year's curriculum, including salesmanship, advertising, applied psychology and foremanship and the largest enrollment in the history of the various schools is anticipated.

WELL KNOWN BUSINESS SCHOOL HAS RECORD BREAKING ENROLLMENT

The Washington Business College, located at 1321 G St., N. W. Washington, D. C., announces that this week is to be known as enrolment week, and so far enrolments are surpassing all previous records. This school was organized by W. C. Poteet and E. T. Whitmore, two experienced and successful commercial teachers. They opened their college for business in August 1917. In the short time that has elapsed since its organization it has grown from a small business occupying but three rooms and employing but three teachers to an institution that is recognized as one of the best known in the city; and now it occupies eight rooms and has a faculty of fourteen experienced teachers. Its enrolment is increasing daily and it is sending out into the field of commercial activity and government service a creditable number of well trained young men and women whose efficiency speaks well for the value of their training.

Civil Service Preparation Pays

Many of the students of this school make a specialty of Civil Service preparation, and thousands of former students of the school are today holding desirable positions and drawing fine salaries in the various departments of the Civil Service. The Washington Business College has a splendid record of success in preparing candidates for the various branches of the Civil Service.

Fair Prices Prevail

Despite the fact that prices in almost all lines have advanced materially during the past two or three years, it is still possible to obtain a course at the Washington Business College at the rate of $16 a month in the day school or $9 a month in the night school. They have not taken advantage of a "situation" but have held the price down and kept the quality up to such an extent that it is still possible to complete a course and to do so satisfactorily at pre-war prices.

C. P. A. Courses Given

Recently the regular courses have been augmented by the introduction of a course in Accounting leading to the degree of Certified Public Accountant. The instructors in this department are all men who have attained the C. P. A. or the LL.B. degree and demonstrated their ability to teach others. The course in Law which is included in this preparation is unusually thorough and comprehensive and is very popular with ambitions young men and women.

Individual Instruction Plan

Classes in every department are taught by a combination of the class method and the individual plan, which enables each student to progress as fast as his ability and industry will permit. This plan also permits students to enter at any time during the year. Classes in shorthand, typewriting, spelling, arithmetic, English, bookkeeping, banking, rapid calculations and penmanship are being formed almost daily so that students may begin at once on any course.

Their new fall catalog is well worth a careful reading and may be obtained on application at the school either by telephone, by letter, or in person.

HIGH WEEDS ON HIGHWAY MENACE TO AUTOISTS

Many automobilists of this city are anxious that efforts be made to have Arlington county authorities cut down the high weeds on the right hand side of the road to Washington from Poorhouse lane to the highway bridge. The danger of hold ups along this road at night with these high weeds it is pointed out are greatly increased by the weeds.

DUE to the vogue for black suits, some extremely chic all black blouses are noted among the new fall numbers. Quite equalling them are the stunning black and white (magpie) models. These, as well as the favored bright hues, are developed in all the new silk crepes, making a collection of unrivalled interest.

We are also showing a beautiful collection of plain colored crepe de chine, georgette crepe and canton crepe blouses and the prices are reasonable, considering the youth of the season.

$3.95 to $25.00

Stunning Suits

A Feature of the Season

THE court-page cape attached to the shoulders of some of these new suits is a jaunty innovation in the extreme mode. Dressy notes, in one form or another, characterize many of the most favored models. Even the classic Tailleur has submitted to the mode and taken on amare gracious aspect The suits are of broadcloth, velour, French serge, tricotine, poiret twill and they are priced—

$29.50 to $65.00

LATE arrivals show many hanhsome dressy modles in coats and wraps of the heavier cloths, such as geronda, marvella, panvelaine, or lando, duvetyn, velour and Bolivia cloth. Trimmed with fur and embroidery for the most part and ornately lined. Cleverly designed capes for afternoon are accepted mode also, and one many women will welcome for its grace and convenience.

And in this large and comprehensive showing of the new coats for fall are sizes and styles that are sure to please every woman in Alexandria. We welcome a visit to this store during the coming week. They are priced—

$19.50 to $125.00

Your Hosiery Must Keep Pace

Hosiery is one of the details of the fine art of dressing to which much attention must be paid nowadays. Colorings, texture, weave, garniture and perfection of fit—but they must be snug.

Therefore, these exquisite new fall numbers, their new shades and perfect fashioning, will please you mightily.

Announcing an Exhibition of

Autumn Modes

SMALL wonder that we feel like veritable globe-trotters in these days of world-inspired fashion developments. It is both exhilirating and enlightening to find ourselves on intimate terms with such foreign topics as the mandarin flare; the Russian blouse; the Egyptian motif; the Spanish note—even the bloused back and picturesque cowl of the austere monk's robe in our very own coats.

Many new colors—colors that have never before been seen in fashion's array—as well as many new materials contribute to the new garments that are being shown for fall.

And the styles have never been more beautiful than women will choose from for this new season. Our windows give you an idea but a close inspection is a necessity.

We will be very glad to show you all the very latest styles and fashion dictates of the season. Come in during next week and choose your new garments for the fall and winter.

Fashions In New Hats

Reflect the Splendor of Many Influences

HATS both large and small seem to veer away from the conventional types of other seasons. Shapes and trimming are showing marked tendency toward the picturesque, ably seconded by a riot of color in all manner of garniture. Velour de Russe and hatter's plush are favored materials while trimmings cover a wide latitude varying from fur ornaments to metallize ostrich.

FOR THE OPENING WEEK ONLY
Any Hat in the Store $5.00

Cloth Frocks

Have Quaint Bishop Sleeves

IT seems quite incredible that the simplicity of the straight-line mode could develop so many and such wholly irresistible variations as are shown in these new Tailored Frocks. They are of Poiret twill, piquetine, etc, unassuming as a man's habit, yet smart beyond words.

FROCKS of CREPE

Grapes again, this time in white kid on a black Canton. The black and white vogue apparently continues undimished though marvelous creations are to be had in such rich shades as Nattier blue, kasha, combined with taupe, dull reds, such as Byzantine and Genoa, wood and leaf browns and others. Side effects in draperies are noted on crepe de chine, Canton crepe, crepe satin frocks.

Bloused backs in peasant fashion are a feature of both silk and cloth frocks for Autumn wear.

Silk Underthings

A charming new atmosphere of refinement pervades the entire line of fall models in all manner of lingerie. This is especially noticeable in the higher grade of silks and crepes, in the increased amount of self trimming and the restrained use of laces. Little touches of real lace instead of elaborate quantities of a cheaper kind are everywhere in evidence and characterize most of the new underthings for fall.

We are showing a very complete lime of silk, satin and crepe teddies, bloomers, vests, camisoles, nightgowns, and we cordially invite every woman in Alexandria who wishes to be well dressed to call and inspect this showing.

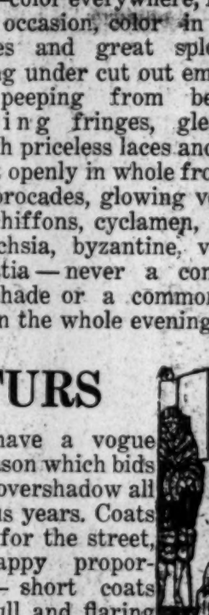
Silk Petticoats

Never a rustle and never a swish announced the arrival of the soft new silk petticoats in all their Autumn splendor. Fashioned of supple silks, they presage generous wearing quality and display a beauty of mode and excellence of workmanship which wins instant friends.

Coats and Dresses for the Children

Smart little coats and dresses for the children are also a feature of our greatest showing of fall and winter fashions. They are made of the same materials as the clothes for older people and are sure to please the youngsters.

The dresses are of silks, velvets and serges and the popular materials for the youngsters' coats are velours, velvets and duvetyn.



Evening Modes

Are Exotically Brilliant In Hue

Color—color everywhere, festive as the occasion, color in little splashes and great splotches, Glinting under cut out embroideries, peeping from beneath swaying fringes, gleaming through priceless laces and coming out openly in whole frocks of regal brocades, glowing velvets, filmy chiffons, cyclamen, madelon, fuchsia, byzantine, voiline, poinsettia—never a commonplace shade or a commonplace name in the whole evening spectrum.

FURS

Furs have a vogue this season which bids fair to overshadow all previous years. Coats of fur for the street, of wrappy proportions — short coats very full and flaring at the lower edge, small, dainty chokers—and they are priced

Fur Coats, $110 to $395

The Jewish Newyear

The Jewish New Year, better known by its Hebrew designation, Rosh Hashanah, occurs this year on Monday, October 3rd.

According to the practice of the Synagog, it will be observed as a holy day from Sunday evening, October 2nd, until the evening of the following day. Among orthodox Jews, a second day of Rosh Hashanah is also observed, in addition, on October 4th.

Rosh Hashanah shares with the Day of Atonement, which occurs ten days later, the distinction of being one of the two most solemn and inspiring holy days of the Synagog. Its Biblical basis is found in Leviticus 23:24: "In the seventh month (of the Hebrew calendar) on the first day of the month, shall be solemn rest unto you, a memorial proclaimed with blast of horns, a holy convocation."

The New-Year's Day, as observed by the Synagog, is not a day of rejoicing merely, such as is in vogue at the beginning of the secular year. This New-Year is a Day of Memorial or a "Day of Remembrance," on which the Jew is reminded of his duty and responsibility as a citizen and a member of the human family. His affiliation with his community binds him to do his share towards the promotion of the cultural and constructive endeavors of mankind.

The leegnd that represents the Jewish New-Year as marking the anniversary of the creation of the world would compute the ensuing year as the 5682nd year since the world was created. According to rabbinical tradition, however, the New-Year marks the anniversary of the creation of man. All humanity has ,therefore, an equal share in the common heritage of a universal birthday.

The symbolism of the ritual service, such as the sounding of the Shoferfi or ram's horn, it utilized to arouse the conscience of the worshipper to a sense of his obligations to his fellow man, as well as to admonish of individual shortcomings.

Among orthodox Jews, elaborate preparation is made for the reception of the great holidays. During a period of four weeks, at least, penitential prayers, called Selihoth, are recited. This continues until the eve of the Day of Atonement. There is a practice of uncertain origin, called Tashlich, in accord with which the members of congregations gather near a running stream or other body of water, on the afternoon of the second day of the holiday and symbolically cast their sins into the depths.

Among American Jews, New-Year's Day is dignified by a high spiritual mesage, enjoining greater devotion to God and country, expressed in public worship. It is, also, used as an occasion to exchange greetings between members of a family and friends in the home, in which the hope is voiced that they be enrolled and inscribed for prosperity, happiness, and service in the ensuing year.

Intricacy and Lingerie

By Marjorie Howe Dixon

Each year brings out more fascinating and interesting models in lingerie styles, charming in their lovely daintiness. Undergarments that are stiffly starched and plain, as in the good old days, when endurance was the chief demand, practically do not exist in these days.

Any woman can call to mind the severe undecorated garments of her mother's day, starched so they scratched one, ugly, uninterestingly plain. Since woman's heart has always delighted in pretty attractive lingerie, she had discarded those old stiff ideas, and now wears soft silks and linens, georgettes and Italian silks.

Corsets, too, have long since yielded to the popular and sensible demand for comfort. Many are made with inserts of elastic with few bones, or entirely of elastic. This year has brought out a soft garment called a corselette, combining brassiere and corset, to be worn at home when a real corset is not required.

One of the novelties in this garment is a corset made of silk braid in flesh pink. The braid is stitched where the bone casings are, but free in between. Another new little idea it boasts is the use of flat pearl buttons on tabs of the braid. Wide lace trims the lower edge of this dainty affairs. Another corset was no wider than a sash. To be sure it combined satin and tricot in flesh pink but it really supported garters, that's all.

Variety of Styles.

Bodices and brassieres are simply unending in profusion of styles and combinations of lace, silks and ribbons. An Italian silk brassiere is one of these. Very popular are the hand embroidered net bodices, with lovely little flowers of silk in pastel tints, reposing gracefully on filet lace as if they enjoyed their part in the charm of the whole.

The bride who will be choosing her trosseau will surely have a thrilling time. One wonders how she can ever come to a decision. One set her heart will demand at once, for it seems to want to belong especially to her. It must have been the demure orange blossoms that gave it away.

Not content to have matching bodice, bloomers, chemise and step-in drawers, it must needs add a cap. This last trifle was nothing but a clever ribbon coronet with knots of orange blossoms trailing loops of ribbon at each end. Filet insertion with pointed edge graces all the dainty parts to this whole, each one of which proudly wears its knot of orange blossoms and white ribbons.

Irresistible Lingerie.

Others among the sets to match have their own breathless interest. Could any woman resist a raspberry confection of filet and georgette, combining a filet strapped chemise with step-in bloomers? Or will she rather be intrigued by a white Italian silk set of bloomers and vest, striped with blue- The top of the chemise wears a yoke of blue crepe de chine.

Breakfast coats for morning wear, —pajamas for the night, and negligees any time between, each hour of the day demands its own lingerie.

For morning there is a wide choice among pretty coats of taffeta, changeable silks, pussy willows crepe de chine and embroidered muslin, of gracing the table when husband wants his morning coffee. But just one moment. One cunning new little garment will not be overlooked. And that is a black and white noisily checked bathrobe. Before she appears at the table she will have hung up this kimona shaped affair, with its wide bands of yellow, all made of nothing less than bath towelling.

Fanciful Pajamas

Pajamas for milady started out quite simply, following the lines of those for men. But they just couldn't stay that way. Oh no. And why should they? So they considered silk for material, especially crepe de chine, and added tucks and laces and things until behold, this charming set. It tried to be simple and squarish and all. It hemmed its coat of pink crepe de chine with tucks of georgette, that turned a square corner running up the front, too. The collars and cuffs were of tucked material, not omitting those on the trousers.

Another pajama set would be fine for traveling. It decided on grey crepe de chine, piping itself on all pockets with coral. A round collar of coral finish neck, and all its cuffs, too.

Negligees look good enough to eat. A princess slip had slipped among them, demanding to be noticed. It was made of white net, gathered at the waist with a wide pink ribbon in a casing. Again at the hem the pink ribbon lurked in its casing edged with a wide ruffle of the net. Beautiful hand embroidery decorated the bodice in a triangular motive, repeated again at the hem in front.

Of these two negligees, which will you choose? One is pink crepe de chine, the other hand embroidered net with filet insertion. The net one conceals, but partly a dainty slip of pink silk, with accordian pleated skirt sashed with blue.

The crepe de chine negligee took a front panel, with a wide hem just beyond filet insertion, and joined to a similar back panel. Then it tied a sash around the two. At the round neck line it wore a lovely pastel bouquet flatly soft as a demur decoration.

Representative Moore's Speech

Washington, Sept. 24.—Today Representative R. Walton Moore, who was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1901-02, referred to the very extreme criticism of conditions in Virginia by Mr. Anderson, the Republican candidate for Governor, and particularly his denunciation of the constitution and the suffrage plan which it provides, including the poll tax. "Although," said Mr. Moore, "Mr. Anderson now goes the limit in denouncing the constitution as vicious and iniquitous, he not only recognized that so far as the suffrage provisions are concerned, it was a necessary and proper step to take, but he gave it his distinct approval after it had been in effect for about six years. In his speech of October 17th, 1908 introducing to a Richmond audience Mr. Taft, who was then running for the Presidency, Mr. Anderson as reported in the Times Dispatch said: 'The problems with which the Southern people were confronted as a result of the Civil War have for the past forty years challenged their closest attention, and prevented natural division upon economic and political questions. The generation that is passing away has devoted its attention to the task of solving these problems in a manner which would preserve our institutions of government in their purity and do justice to all classes. When we consider the difficulties to be overcome, the small resources at their command, and the results which have been accomplished the achievements of the Virginians of the last generation compare well with those of her sons in the more brilliant periods of her history, and merit the lasting gratitude of generations to come. But happily, these problems have been solved and these conditions have passed. The reason urged for the constitution of 1902 was that the adjustment of the problems which that instrument sought to settle would leave the people of this State free to divide upon economic questions and thus increase the influence of Virginia in national affairs and promote the political and industrial progress of her people. The adoption of that constitution was the last step in the work of forty years which has placed the institutions of this State upon a sound basis, has assured the supremacy of intelligence in our government, and has opened to the people of all races and all classes an opportunity to reap and enjoy the rewards of good citizenship.' Mr. Anderson, who then praised the constitution, now urges that it be summarily swept away. At the same time, he suggests no substitute in the way of suffrage restrictions that would prevent the State from being returned to the condition that obtained in Virginia and other Southern States prior to the adoption of existing constitutions, without which their institutions would not be upon 'a sound basis' and the supremacy of intelligence' would not be assured. Apparently he is willing to unsolve the problems for which the constitution found a solution and again bring to the front the race questions and suffrage controversies that it disposed of. The representative of Alexandria in the constitutional convention was the late Col. Francis L. Smith one of the foremost citizens and lawyer of the state."

STYLES FOR MEN

The increasing reluctance men are showing to discard oxfords even in cold weather originally occasioned tehnecessity of a heavy model that fathered the brogue.

Although the vogue was originally intended for oxfords, the treatment has extended to shoes. Heavily ornamented, they produced a novelty in men's shoes that was very acceptable after the exclusive supremacy of ultra conservative English walking models. So popular did the style become, that it was retained through the entire summer, and now is advanced from the novelty class to a staple fashion that will probably continue as a Fall shoe requisite.

Comfort Important Factor

Their roomy lasts and square tips are so comfortable and easy on the felt that this influence is noted in all of the favored shoe fashions. Even the exclusive English models are displaying more rounded toes following the natural lines of the foot.

Brown is the popular color for fall. Russet and cordovan shades are preferred as a compromise between the very dark browns and light tans.

Black, dull nad gun metal finishes es ever retain their position of correctness in all seasons.

Few Button Models Shown

Not many button models are to be worn. A few patent leather ones with kid tops are displayed for strictly formal occasions.

More favored than the button models are patent oxfords with light hand turned soles for dress wear.

Spats are worn with these, giving the necessary protection from the cold and producing a very smart effect. For use in this connection the lighter shades of fawn, tan, pearl and beige are employed, but for more ordinary wear dark gray, brown and black spats are preferred.

Roomier Lasts Favored

A word more about the more familiar and established English walking shoes. They are of a simple refined vogue, and always retain a place of their own in shoe fashions, varying but slightly in their general characteristics. The past seasons induced a more exaggerated pointing but the roomier lasts of the Fall styles have re-established the more natural dignity that marks the models.

The tendency to "square toes" and more generous lasts is one to be encouraged, as it will produce a beneficial effect on men's feet, besides furnishing a more natural and graceful shoe.

SPEED WAGON

An Exception to all Rules

You always expect to obtain an imitation for less than you'd have to pay for the original from which that imitation was copied.

Now it's a strange fact that though many imitations have been made of this Reo Speed Wagon, none has been able to duplicate its high efficiency or low upkeep.

Nor has any been able to equal Reo efficiency in manufacturing.

As a result—and this is a condition unprecedented in commerce—they have to charge more for the imitation that we price the original at.
